2025 IASB High School Broadcasting Competition Awards announced

INDIANAPOLIS—Nearly 800 students and instructors from 32 Indiana high schools and career centers attended the 22nd annual Indiana Association of School Broadcasters conference at Butler University on March 10th. Students attended educational workshops that addressed topics including social media, film, broadcast journalism, podcasting, storytelling and sports play-by-play before receiving awards earned in the IASB High School Broadcasting Competition in 44 categories across five divisions: radio, news, sports, video, and emerging media.

Based on points earned in this year's competition, the Southern Indiana Career and Technical Center was named Radio School of the Year. Homestead High School won School of the Year honors in the video, news, and sports divisions, and tied with Carmel High School for the Emerging Media School of the Year designation.
